FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PERSONNEL POLICY SERVICE AUTHORS EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK COLUMN IN EVERY ISSUE!

Personnel Policy Service (PPS) delivers sound HR policies and smart employment law compliance tips and tactics in its new column published in each issue of Human Capital.

Robin Thomas, J.D., managing editor at Personnel Policy Service talks directly with business owners, HR professionals, HR consultants, and managers across the country. She has counseled these professionals on the numerous employment laws and regulations that affect their day-to-day business, including policies and procedures from hiring and firing to using the Internet. "Our new column in Human Capital will encourage employers to practice 'preventive maintenance' and to invest in sound policy systems now in order to avoid the trouble and expense of employee discontent and litigation later," Ms. Thomas said.

"As HR practices and legislation change, executives need quick and concise updates on what should be updated in their personnel manuals," says Betty Hintch, editor, Human Capital. "This column provides our readers with regular feedback on what portions of their manuals should be reviewed and possibly updated."

Human Capital's mission is to update senior level HR professionals and top management on latest workforce strategies that impact the bottom line. The readership of Human Capital consists of executives in corporate management positions as well as in human resources, training, finance, information technology, sales, marketing and operations.

Regular magazine sections are: Compensation and Benefits Plans; Performance Improvement and Recognition; Recruitment and Staffing; HR Technology Solutions; Training, Development and Executive Education; Employee Relocation Strategies.
